1st Annual Horses & At-Risk Youth Symposium

The 1st Annual Horses & At-Risk Youth Symposium was held at the beautiful Horse Sense of the Carolinas facility (Marshall, North Carolina) on June 25-26, 2010. Attendees at the 2-day event learned from experts in the field of horses and at-risk youth, focusing on the creating the structure of a successful program.

The 2-day event was a special combination of horse-time and classroom time, to deepen the overall understanding of effective equine-assisted programming. There were sessions about the various modalities of practicing equine-assisted work, including EAGALA, EFMHA, & NAHRA. The 40 attendees came from all over the country to integrate these perspectives into a comprehensive whole of their own.

The symposium was all about hands-on experience and putting ideas into action. While evaluating the Symposium as a whole, an attendee said, "This was beyond my wildest expectations. So many truly amazing people in the field. It was a true pleasure!" Another attendee added, "This [symposium] helped me focus on what I need to do from a management standpoint to keep my organization growing. Thanks!"
